Aging And Our Eyes What You Can Do to Keep Eyes Healthy

Tuesday, March 8, 2011
7:30 pm
Education Building, Central Moravian

Every seven minutes, someone in the United States loses his sight, often as part of the aging process (The Braille Institute of America). This information can be found on the Center for Vision Loss website where you will also find the following quote. "If visual impairment has affected your life, we are here to help."

This non-profit agency, a member of the PA Association for the Blind, serves the residents of Lehigh, Northampton and Monroe Counties who are blind or visually impaired to lead well-adjusted, rewarding and productive lives.

Maybe vision loss has not affected you yourself, but you may have aging family members or friends who have experienced vision impairment to some degree.

Come and learn more about four types of Age-Related Eye Diseases and Eye Health and Safety.

Karen Huetter from the Center for Vision Loss will use Power Point and we will try out some equipment to see what vision loss can be like. She will bring along several Low Vision Aides which can make life with vision loss easier.

Karen has been the Development Director of the Center for Vision Loss since 2006. Previously she was on the Board of Directors of VIABL (Visual Impairment and Blindness Services) of Northampton County which has since merged with the Center for Vision Loss. As a result, she has experienced helping the visually impaired from both the board and the staff perspectives. Karen writes grants and raises money for services and programs.

Thank you to Let's Read Math for the hospitality.

Members in the News

In the January 16 issue of the Bethlehem Press, treasurer Myra Jones was pictured with other women at a reunion of the Junior Miss Baseball players. Teams competed in the 1950s from almost every neighborhood in Bethlehem.

"I've come to believe that each of us has a personal calling that's as unique as a fingerprint - and that the best way to succeed is to discover what you love and then find a way to offer it to others in the form of service, working hard, and also allowing the energy of the universe to lead you."

President's Message from Susan P. McNamara

For many, January-February 2011 will be remembered as a time of disruptions in planned activities, events, projects and a constant struggle with multiple cancelled or rescheduled meetings, activities, appointments, or social plans replaced by hours of shoveling and chopping snow/ice. For AAUW-Bethlehem and AAUW-PA, however, these months have offered some unexpected opportunities to take advantage of and appreciate some more benefits of modern technology and investments in collaboration. As a result, this has been a busy and productive time for us.

In January, the AAUW-PA Board held a day-long and a near five hours' conference call meeting. Prepared with President McGrath's ambitious agenda, phones with speakers turned up and computers turned on, a web service file (Dropbox.com) filled with board member reports, and a set of rules that allowed for active but orderly participation by all members as well as bathroom, stretch, and lunch breaks, we all took a deep breath and plunged in! By the end of the day, we had not only worked our way through this agenda but managed some of the spontaneity and laughter that usually characterized the board meetings. In addition, we left feeling the sense of accomplishment which comes from having collectively ventured into new technology territory with more than a little anxiety and managed a success!

Closer to home, the planning group for the March 12th Inter-branch diversity program was not deterred by sleet or snow as they also used Dropbox.com to facilitate its work. Students at Moravian College got busy on plans for a Pay Equity bake sale and a Take Back the Night March series of events for April. A hearty bunch, our Let's Read Math group of Allentown and Bethlehem volunteers has also not been put off by weather events and school cancellations! Working by computer with e-mails and a scheduling chart, they persevered. Not to be put off either, our Book Fair chair and the many volunteers she has enlisted continued their preparations.

In short, with cooperation and collaboration, a willingness to overcome technology anxieties and use it to advantage, a strong commitment to goals and lots of good spirited, "hey, what the heck, it's worth a try" attitudes, we in AAUW have done well in spite of whatever comes our way. If we can do all that we have in mid-winter, think what spring will bring!

In addition to the collaborative Inter-branch diversity program, the Book Fair, and the Moravian Student Affiliate and Let's Read Math events planned for spring, branch members also have an opportunity to participate in the AAUW-PA Annual Member meeting on Saturday, April 30, 2011. Branch member participation in our collaborative projects and events typically has been exceptional. In the past, however, few members from Bethlehem have elected to attend either the PA Annual meeting or convention. Even though these members have found them to be informative and energizing opportunities for learning and working together across branches, they have proven the rare instance in which AAUW-Bethlehem has been underrepresented.

While it seems early to plan, I hope that by beginning now and making a concerted, collective effort, we might change this. I recognize that this year's meeting falls on Book Fair Bag Day and having plenty of worker bees there has been and remains a clear priority. With our broadly active and substantial membership, however, we should be able to meet this need and have a presence at the AAUW-PA meeting.

As you look at your April calendar, please look at the Registration form (See Page 9) and think about adding the AAUW-PA meeting to your list of engagements. The PA Board has worked diligently to create a varied program with particular attention to You, the member. To further encourage AAUW-Bethlehem participation, the branch will cover the costs for two teams or six members. E plan to arrange car pools. If you are willing to attend or even to consider attending the meeting, please let me know by no later than March 18 so that we can work out Book Fair accommodations and branch financing, along with meeting registration and transportation arrangements. Please call (610-216-4905) or write me (smc8066@yahoo.com) if you have any questions. I'd be happy to talk.

TECH TALK: "See you on Skype!"

Fifteen years ago, I sat in orientation for my new job at AT&T and listened to their visions of the future where everyone would be using video phones to communicate. Very cool but this isn't Disney World; this is real life! Well, welcome to Skype! To learn more, visit: www.skype.com

Skype is a software application that allows users to make voice calls over the Internet. Using Skype, you can make unlimited and free calls from anywhere to anywhere in the world. In order to "skype" someone, both parties just need a camera, speakers, and a microphone, good Internet connection, and the Skype software (which you can download for free). It is a secure form of communication. As with a telephone, you must know a person's information and add them to your contact list before communicating.

The corporate world uses Skype for business calls, video conference calls, remote activity monitoring, and even hiring and firing employees. On a personal level, Skype enables users to communicate with loved ones at long-distances. This is especially important where families are spread out across the nation. Skype helps generations to stay connected "in real time" (not just from pictures or videotaping). Regardless of where you live, grandparents can still see their grandchildren reach their milestones. Grandchildren can still "grow up" and recognize their grandparents, despite distance. Although lacking the important element of "touch", this virtual communication is the next best thing in our global society.

The Real Education Gaps

AAUW's Hallman has letter published in New York Times
Published: January 17, 2011

To the Editor:

According to "Man or Male?" (Education Life, Jan. 9), which compares men's studies and male studies, both fields agree on something that is, fortunately, not true — that "academically at least, young men are in trouble."

As our report "Where the Girls Are: The Facts About Gender Equity in Education" explains, there is no "boys' crisis." Boys continue to outscore girls, on average, on many standardized tests, including the SAT math and critical reading tests. And according to the United States Department of Education, 41 percent of both girls and boys who graduated from high school in 2007-08 were attending a four-year college in the fall of 2008. Certainly, some young men are in trouble, as are some young women. But whether we measure by test scores in elementary school, high school graduation rates or college enrollment, the differences in educational achievement are much greater between students from different income levels and different racial/ethnic backgrounds than between girls and boys.

AAUW to Receive Cy Pres Award for Work to Fight Gender Discrimination

Award Follows Groundbreaking Gender Discrimination Case Settlement

The American Association of University Women (AAUW) has been awarded $23,500 as part of a cy pres award from the judgment in the largest gender discrimination case to ever go to trial.

The class action lawsuit against Novartis Pharmaceuticals Corporation included approximately 5,600 women sales force employees who claimed gender discrimination based on pay, promotion, and pregnancy. A jury found Novartis liable for gender discrimination in May 2010, and the subsequent settlement was filed in federal court in New York in July 2010. Judge Colleen McMahon of the U.S. District Court for Eastern New York approved the final settlement agreement in November, and AAUW learned of its selection to receive a cy pres award in December.

Cy pres awards are the result of class action lawsuit funds and are typically distributed to charitable organizations. AAUW will receive this award to support its mission to advance equity for women and girls.

“We commend the brave plaintiffs and their extraordinary legal team in the Novartis case,” said AAUW Executive Director Linda D. Hallman, CAE. “They have broken through barriers for women employees of Novartis and for women employees around the world. We hope this case will inspire more women to stand up for their rights as workers and teach a lesson to those who would discriminate on gender or any other basis. AAUW is proud to be associated with this case and honored to be the recipient of an award that affirms our work against all forms of gender discrimination.”

The award from the Novartis settlement will help fund AAUW’s continuing advancement of women and girls through our programs, research, and advocacy, especially on the issue of fair pay. As this case demonstrates, wage discrimination remains a critical problem, and women’s pay still lags behind that of men. On average, women make 77 cents for every dollar earned by their male counterparts, and they represent only a small percentage of those who hold top positions in business and academia. By some estimates, women may lose between $500,000 and $1 million because of wage discrimination over a 40-year career.

“We were so pleased to be able to recommend AAUW for a cy pres award,” said Katherine Kimpel, a partner at the firm Sanford, Wittels, and Heisler, LLP, who successfully represented the class of more than 6,000 current and former women sales employees at Novartis. “Having an ally like AAUW in the fight for gender equity is so important, and we trust that the cy pres award will help AAUW continue to make a difference in the lives of girls and women across the United States. The victory in Novartis, although gratifying, is just one step in the right direction, as far too many employers continue to deny women workers their fair share of the American dream.”

One Member, One Vote

At 130 Years, a Vote for All of Us

AAUW's first every-member election, authorized by delegates at the 2009 National Convention and scheduled for this spring, represents a remarkable leap forward for our 130-year-old organization. This unprecedented event reflects AAUW's unique spirit: passionately historic and keenly cutting-edge.

In late April each AAUW member will receive a ballot and voter information guide in the mail. The ballot with your member number will also have a personal identification number (PIN) for voting. To vote online, go to www.aauw.org and follow the voting instructions on the home page. You will be prompted for your member number and PIN. Online voting will be open from May 1 through 9 pm EDT on June 12, 2011.

To use the paper mail-in ballot, please refer to the voter information guide, mark your ballot, and return in the envelope provided. Add postage and make sure the postmark is no later than May 31, 2011.

Please research and discuss the issues. The winter AAUW OUTLOOK contains a special election section to study.

Filmmaker and 2010 AAUW Community Action Grant recipient LeAnn Erickson is screening her documentary Top Secret Rosies: The Female Computers of WWII across the United States and is winning all kinds of praise - along with media attention - for uncovering the contributions of women scientists during the war effort.

In the February 8 CNN article about the film, Carolyn Leighton, founder of Women in Technology International, said, "The most important part of all of these stories is how we can use them to shape the legacy for the next generation of women. We know now, without question, how role models can inspire and affect choices. It's not only for them, but the young women and men we can inspire."

Diversity Meeting: Looking at History in a New Way
Saturday March 12, 2011

It's almost spring and a good time for new ideas and the warm glow of old ideas seen in a new light. In celebration of Women's History Month, we invite you to join with AAUW Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and Pocono Area in cooperation with Sharon A. Brown, Director of the Office of Institutional Diversity, Moravian College and Moravian Theological Seminary, for an exploration of the Jim Crow era in American history as dramatized in the novel The Help by Kathryn Stockett. We will examine and discuss what life was like for both Black and White families in a typical Southern community, and consider the lives of Black and White women, in particular. Some feel that this book is controversial since it is written by a White woman, about Black women and written using a Black dialect. Others feel that this book is right on the mark in its portrayal of life during Jim Crow. Has anything changed other than the laws? Where are we now? We'll examine what we feel and think about these and many other topics suggested by the novel.

It is not required that you read the book (we will provide the pertinent selections needed from the novel). If you can, bring your copy, your lunch, and your thoughts. The program is 10-12 am at the Moravian Theological Center, Bahnsen Center, Moravian College (North) campus. Stay for a bag lunch to continue the conversation. We provide drinks and dessert.

Directions: Route 22 to Rt. 512/Center Street exit. South on Center Street to Washington Avenue. Turn right onto Washington to Main Street. Turn left (south) onto Main through the light. Turn left onto W. Locust Street. Parking on the street or in lots on Locust and Elizabeth. Call Toni (610-252-7020) or Susan (610-861-8066) for questions.
